Practical buying summary

Card Kingdom is better for sealed Magic inventory clarity: prices, availability, and individual deck listings were much easier to read, especially for Universes Beyond Commander decks, Commander Masters, Commander Collections, and sleeves.

Noble Knight is better for oddball/restock/historical inventory: it surfaced out-of-print products, used copies, deck-only copies, life counters, dice, older Commander products, and Warhammer accessories.

Best Noble Knight finds: Necron Dynasties used/deck-only copy, Doctor Who Timey-Wimey, Avatar Play Booster Display, Spider-Man Play Booster Display, TMNT Play Booster Display, Warhammer 40K sleeves, Magic life counters, and dice sets.

Best Card Kingdom finds from the earlier list: The Ruinous Powers with a visible price, broader Universes Beyond Commander deck coverage, Final Fantasy sleeve variety, Commander Collections, and cleaner deck-box inventory.
